

ANDREW LAW HALL – ACCESSIBLE SEATING GUIDE

When attending an event in the Andrew Law Hall at Aviva Studios, we know that some visitors appreciate some extra information about seating options and the journey around the venue.

Seating

Seats in the Andrew Law Hall are a fold-out, cushioned design. They all have arm and back rests, and are approximately 42cm wide and 47cm high from floor to seat.

Leg room varies depending on the location of the seat. The seats with the most leg room are located in row K of the Stalls. The seats with the least leg room are in row A of the Circle.

Visitors requiring a seat with extra space are invited to request one of our two wider, free-standing chairs when they book their ticket. These are approximately 56cm wide and 47cm high from floor to seat and can be positioned in one of our wheelchair user spaces for visitors also requiring additional leg room. These seats are also significantly deeper than our standard offer.

Stalls

Wheelchair user spaces and step-free seats can be found on row K of the Stalls. This row is accessed via door A or D, which are on Level 2 of the building. Level 2 can be accessed via staircase, lift or escalator.

All other rows in the Stalls are accessed via doors A, B, C or D, which are all on Level 2 of the building: rows A-J are accessed via doors A and D; rows K-X are accessed via doors B and C. After entering through door B or C, you will go up a staircase of 13 steps, followed by further steps to your row within the auditorium. Please note, there are no handrails present in the Stalls.

Please see below for the number of steps from entry doors to each row in the Stalls. Entry doors are assigned in order to manage the flow of the audience but if you would benefit from a shorter route to your seat, please speak to a member of our Front of House team on arrival, who will be happy to assist you.
